Fashions And People Change

Change is a way of life today. Everywhere you turn, you see it. There isn't any aspect in life where change doesn't take place. Student life at William Campbell was no different. It changed too.

Among the changes, good and bad, the most significant was the water tower being built. A covered walkway was constructed to keep the students from getting wet when changing classes. The school sign was demolished and had to be replaced. Familiar faces of some teachers were no longer seen because of retirement. Yes, and even fashions changed. The mini, midi and maxi became common sights. Beards and mustaches became familiar sights on the boys. Girls began wearing slacks.

The year passed quickly amid the many changes. The class of 1971 passed the torch to the class of 1972. Yes, WC changed along with the changing world.

The fall brought football games, cheerleaders, and a dwindling supply of spectators at our games.

We tried, but we couldn't do it. The Generals went down in defeat at the hands of the Rustburg Red Devils. This was the story of our football season — defeat.

As usual it rains on picture-making day and the drill team, majorettes, and annual staff members scurry for the safety of an umbrella. Even the school dog gets in a hurry.

Changes Come To WC Students

Women's Liberation . . . mini skirt . . . midis and maxis . . . girls playing basketball in evening gowns? . . . evening gowns with saddle oxfords? . . . This was W. C. in 1971 on the feminine side. They proved that they were just as good as the male species, but they could look feminine in the process.

On the male side . . . mustaches . . . longer side burns . . . large army coats . . . bare feet . . . This too was W. C.

On the grounds around the school . . . the old school sign with black letters . . . a new sign being put up . . . of course, the new water tank. These were William Campbell in 1971.

Sideburns, longer hair and very sharp mustaches cue a sign of the times. Donnie Isaacs is just one of the students showing individualism.

Saddle oxfords with evening attire? Catherine Dunaway's feet are caught in the act.

A rebel with a cause is Chris Holt. It doesn't really count if you're different and not sincere about it. Many of our students were sincere and served a useful purpose.

Maxis, Midis, and Pants Suits made their debut. The longer attire was welcomed and worn extensively by our girls. Ginger Ward presents a very typical picture around school.

Evening dresses on the basketball court are not really common attire for the girls. Patty Nash is just waiting around for an annual picture to be made.

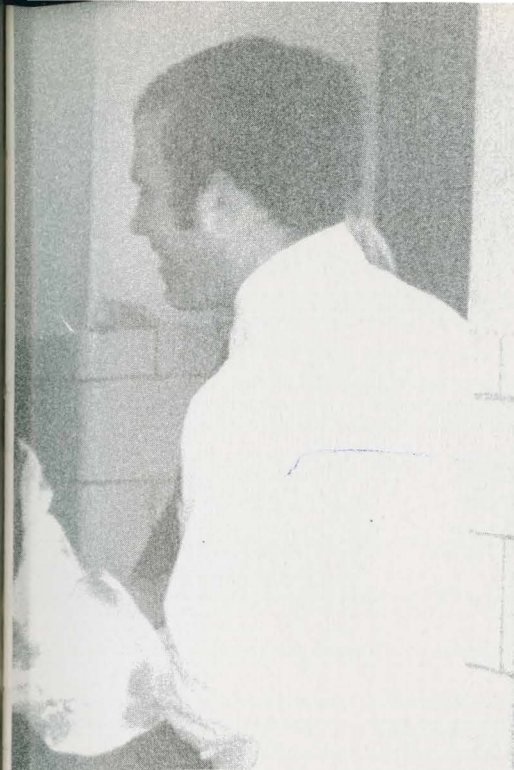

The mad rush is on as Hilda Hostedler, Barry Daye, Glenn Mitchell, Deborah Tuck, William Hamlett, and Mike Epperson arrive to begin another school day.

Disciplinary problems or a friendly chat before school keeps the benches outside the office occupied. Deborah Davis, Bonnie Tibbs, and Merle Puckett take advantage of the benches for the latter.

A common sight that exemplifies the terrific teacher-student relationship is a gab session during class change between Vickie Goodman, Mr. Lampman, Mrs. Grenier and Mr. Vasvary.

The office is a busy place before school whether for business or friendly talk. Admiring Mrs. Lusardi's pin are Mrs. Minix and Mrs. M. Fore.

Some Scenes Remain Unchanged

Amid the many changes that took place, some things did not change.

The teachers still got together in the mornings for their usual "gab" sessions, ranging from a dress they were making to why their car wouldn't start that morning.

Students arriving at school all smiles did not change either. Everyone was eager to come to school.

Students sitting on the benches in the hall did not change. Waiting for a friend or that special someone to arrive seemed to be their main objective.

"Why were you absent yesterday?" is a question familiar to everyone. Checking by Mrs. Myrtle Fore's office to get that little slip of paper saying you were excused or unexcused did not change.

Teachers and students talking in the halls before school was another familiar sight.

So as you could see, in a year of change, some things just refused to change.

Unbelievable excuses for absences and lateness are turned into Mrs. M. Fore each morning which makes her one of the busiest people around school.

Springing forth as buds of beauty are the senior candidates for Homecoming Queen, Paula Beacham, Martha Yates, and Nancy Bennett.

Student life was enriched through the efforts of our dedicated cheerleaders and band members during our football games this year.

Student Life

Some activities around W. C. remained the same. Students looked forward to . . . pep rallies . . . Homecoming . . . basketball and football season . . . Junior-Senior Prom . . . and most of all . . . Senior Day. All these events combined to make an exciting year, full of surprises and memories and changes.

Spanish students busily working, portray an every day activity in the life of a student.

Faculty Honors Outstanding '71 Seniors

Heading the senior math division Larry Eades, Debra Guthrie and Andrew Evans combine their mathematical minds on an intricate problem.

Seniors that received honors in the science department, Jere Lee Davidson and David Hall show hard work and research in the physics lab.

Chris Holt, Jasper Harvey, Alvin Pannell, Rufus Marshall, and Evelyn DeJarnette claiming senior honors in the English department receive enjoyment from the comic strips.

For Jimmy Carr, Martha Wilson and Janet Riddlebarger, foreign language proved to be an area of excellence.

Receiving honors in music, Cynthia Vassar, Scotty Hendricks, Becky Hodnett and Tommy Peak prepare for the Christmas Concert.

Delving into the workings of our federal government and courts brought Lorna Jefferson, Roger Waller, Steve Austin and Theresa Peerman honors in history.

Business honors in this year's senior class were taken by Marilyn Clark and Donna Ward.

Homecoming Ushers In The Age Of Aquarius

It was the dawning of the "Age of Aquarius" during the half-time activities of Homecoming 1970. The Generals introduced this age on October 2, 1970 at their annual Homecoming. The week's activities centered around this theme.

The big night arrived with an atmosphere of anticipation in the air. Following the half-time show by the Marching Generals, Martha Yates was crowned Homecoming Queen by Mr. Dennis B. Riddle and Mr. Joseph Berryman. Martha was the only girl born under the sign of Aquarius. This was very appropriate for the occasion.

The results of the football game were very disappointing with the Generals going down to defeat to our arch rivals the Rustburg Red Devils. Bringing the week to a close, the game and half-time festivities added finishing touches to a memorable week plus ushering in the "Age of Aquarius".

A lovely smile expresses the joy of a dream come true for Martha Yates as Mr. Riddle crowns her Homecoming Queen 1970.

Majorettes Scotty Hendricks, Debra Guthrie, and Cynthia Hendricks along with Marilyn Vassar presented a dazzling half-time show.

Happiness is very evident on the face of Queen Martha Yates after her crowning.

17-7 and the Generals go down in defeat to the Rustburg Red Devils. Luckily, the cameraman caught the one and only General touchdown in the Homecoming game.

Anxious anticipation sparks the faces of the candidates for Homecoming Queen, Paula Beacham, Nancy Bennett, and Martha Yates.

Scotty Hendricks Puts WC On The Map

Second runner-up . . . Anticipation fills the air . . . Who will it be? — Miss Scotty Hendricks.

Yes, on November 14, 1970, Scotty Hendricks won another honor for herself and William Campbell. She placed second in Lynchburg's Junior Miss Contest. This was the first time William Campbell had ever had a contestant in this pageant.

Scotty's talent was, naturally, a baton twirling routine and dance. For weeks before, she and the other contestants had been practicing for the big event and going through the preliminary contests. Scotty placed first in the Miss Breck Contest.

Yes, Scotty made all of her friends proud of her, and William Campbell is proud of her too.

Working out routines for the majorettes is one of Scotty's many duties as head majorette for the Marching Generals.

Long hours of practice were put into Scotty's dance and twirling presentation for the Junior Miss Pageant.

Standing at attention during the playing of our National Anthem, Scotty Hendricks presents a pretty and impressive picture.

Everyday Activities Reflect Student Life Accurately

Lunch is always a "pleasant" break from the daily routine. Jesse Lovelace gives the cafeteria workers a helping hand.

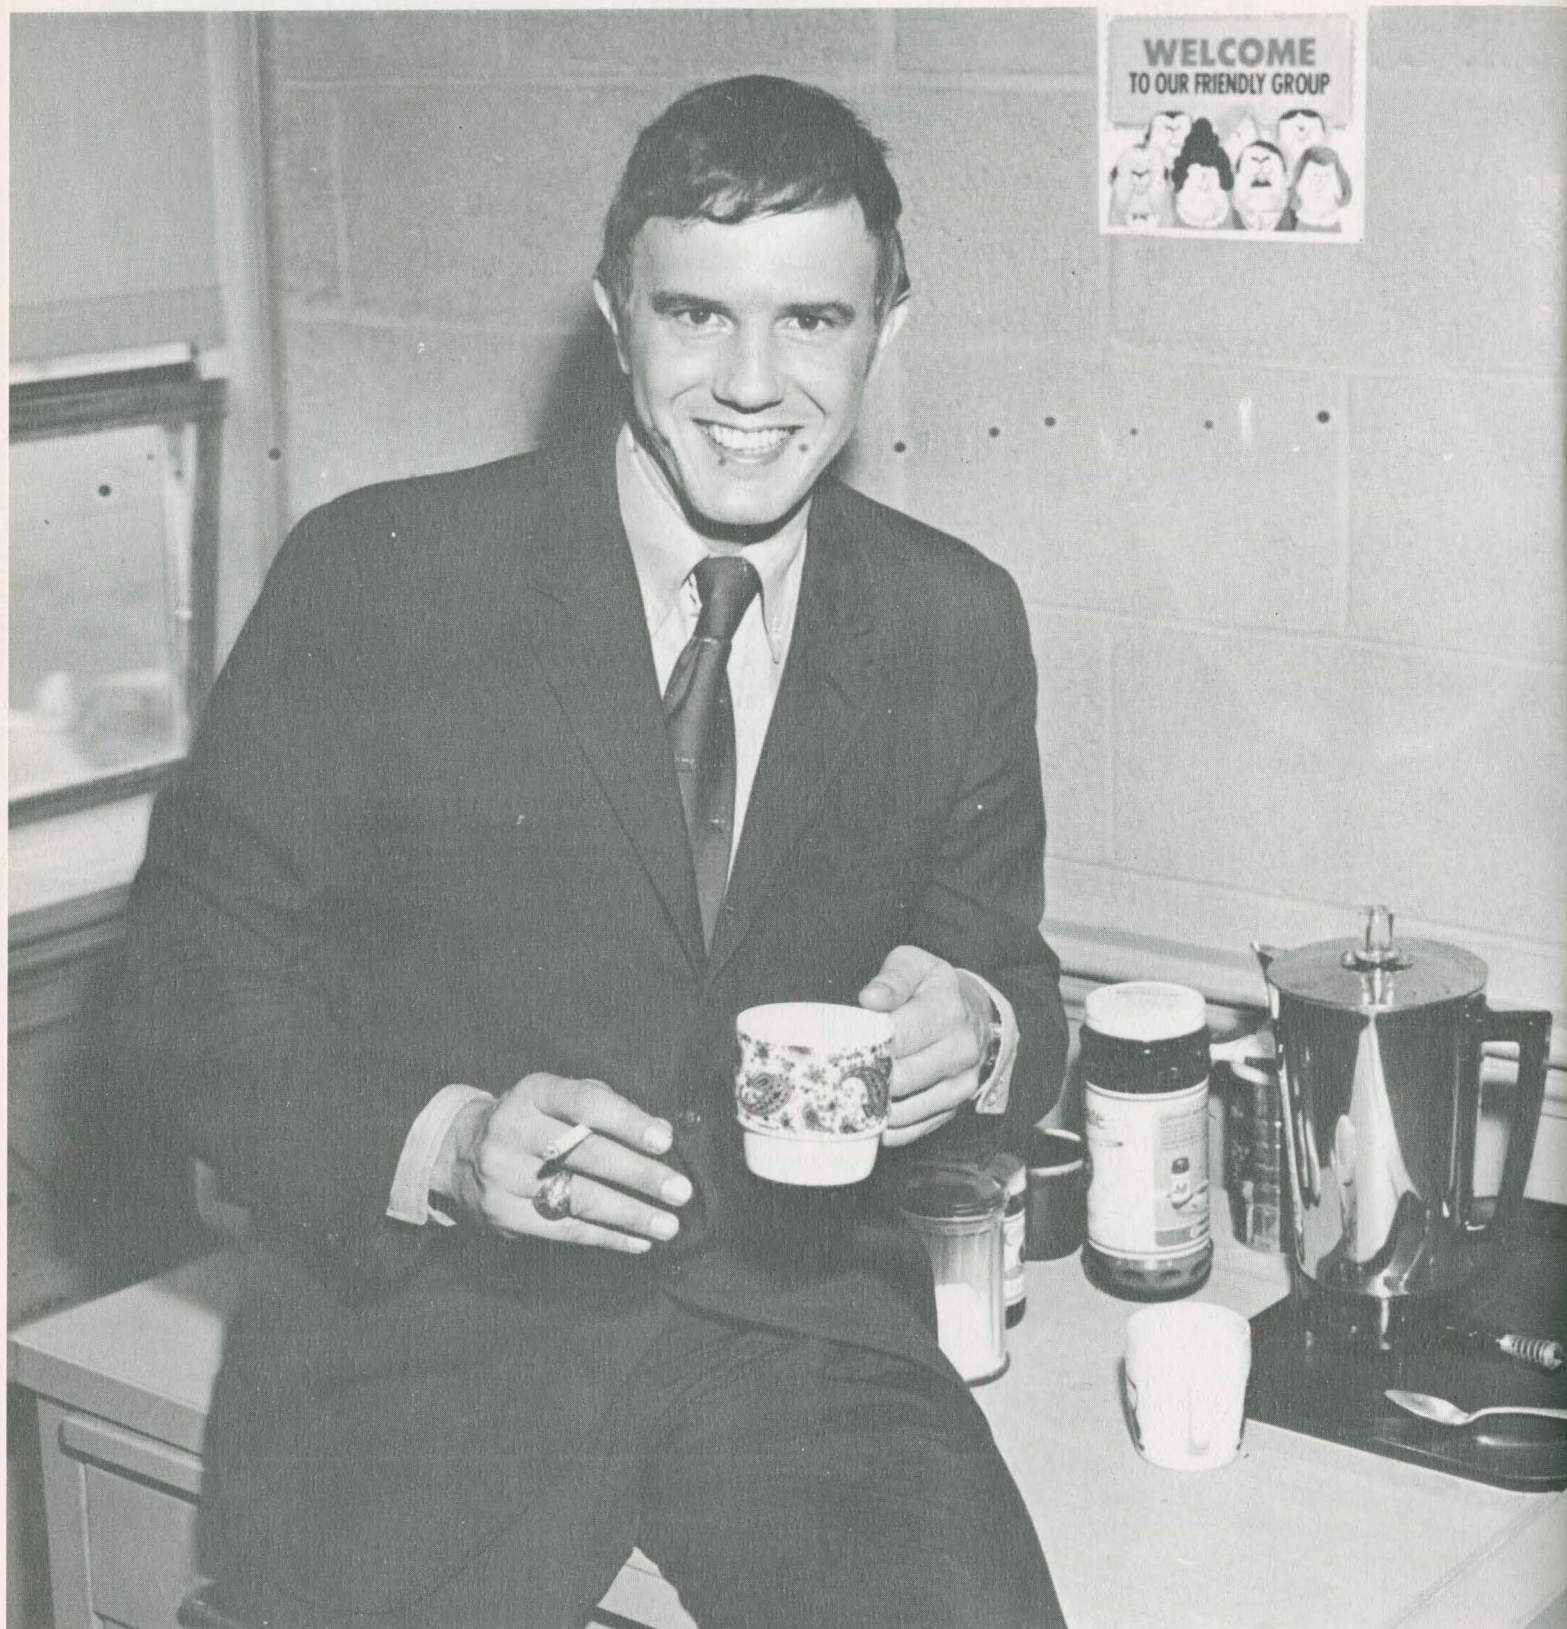

Study seems to take up a big part of a students' life. Larry Eades ponders over a tough assignment.

What would art be like without Mr. Keesee's messy art room?

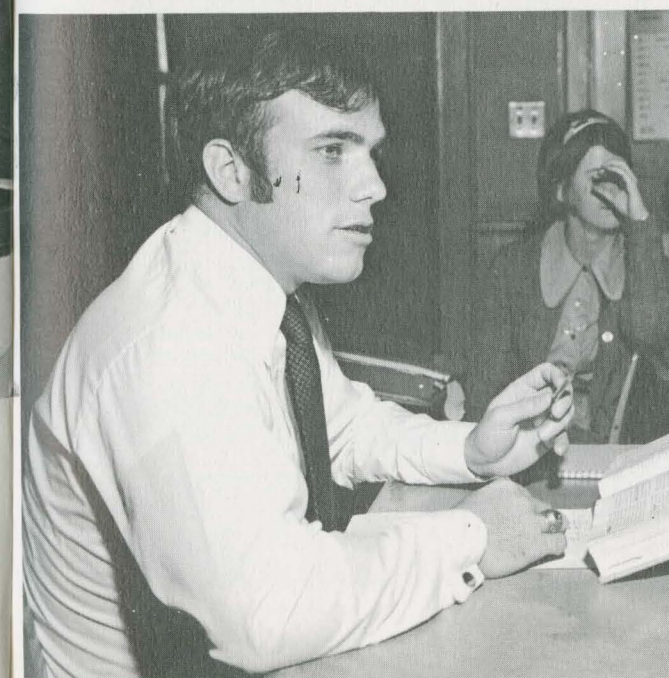

"Coffee, tea, or me," seems to be what Mr. Booth's smile is saying as he relaxes in his favorite hang-out, posing in front of his favorite portraits—the Dixie Dutchmen and his fellow teachers.

Telling it like it is, Mrs. Grenier has the class in the palm of her hand.

Laying it on the line, Mr. Vasvary stimulates the disagreement of Martha Yates.

Academics

The changing classroom scene brought to mind . . . Hamlet . . . mock Congress in government . . . tests . . . physics . . . science projects . . . experiments . . . visits to the guidance department . . . visits to the office for one reason or another . . . banquets . . . good smells in the halls from home economics class . . . Christmas . . . decorated doors . . . and Easter. The biggest change was the moving of club period to Friday afternoon. Each activity was a part of the learning experience of William Campbell students.

Psyched Out by The Consumers Report, Mr. Clark presents an interesting picture for all to see.

Principals Strive To Bridge Gap

Individually and as a team, Mr. Dennis B. Riddle and Mr. Joseph Berryman endeavored to attain a spirit of unity and pride between teachers and students.

Mr. Riddle's office is the co-ordinating point and "clearing house" for most of the school's activities. He has the "last word" in scholastic and extracurricular activities.

Mr. Berryman took over the duties of assistant principal with a genuine interest in his position. He has won the respect and admiration of each student. He always has a kind word and cheery smile for everyone. If a teacher can succeed in bridging the generation gap, Mr. Berryman is on his way to doing it.

Both men are sincerely concerned with the students welfare; they are willing listeners and will always try to help solve the students problems.

Mr. Riddle and Mr. Berryman performed the administrative work of the school efficiently and enthusiastically. Governing the school and yet belonging to it, the administration provided students with a comfortable, educational atmosphere. Both men personify the spirit that is William Campbell High School.

Even under the heavy responsibility of being a principal Mr. Riddle finds time to pose for the photographer.

Forging ahead, through the monthly paperwork, Mrs. Minix takes time out to smile for the photographer.

Secretaries Have Many Responsibilities

A vital portion of our administrative staff are the school secretaries. Mrs. Nancy Minix and Mrs. June McHaney performed various duties necessary to maintain an efficient and smooth institution. They are invaluable assets to William Campbell.

Mrs. Minix's chief duty was bookkeeping. She kept records of all money transactions and wrote all checks. Aside from this task she was a willing listener and was available for answering questions.

The tasks of general office work, typing letters, absentee list, answering the phone, and other jobs, fall on the shoulders of Mrs. McHaney. She, too, was a willing listener.

The combination of skill, accuracy, speed and pleasing personalities and winning smiles make Mrs. Minix and Mrs. Mc Haney two of W.C.'s favorite people.

Busily working, Mr. Berryman endeavors to fulfill his duties as Assistant Principal to his fullest capacity.

Our group had 40% fewer cavities! Mrs. McHaney's winning smile is a common sight in the office.

Guidance Office Is School's Heart

Which class should I take next year? What tests will I need for college? How do I fill in this application? With these and many more questions in mind, students turned to the guidance counselors for advice and assurance. The counselors helped the students answer their questions, plus they encouraged students to set high goals and to strive to attain them.

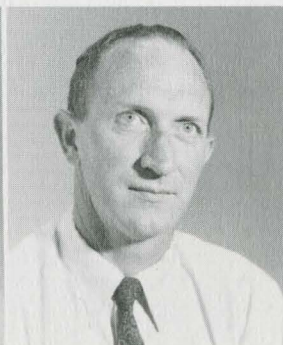

Made up of two dedicated counselors, Mrs. Mary Maddox and Mr. Frazier Sizemore, Jr., the guidance department discussed courses, achievement test scores and college requirements with interested and questioning students. Juniors and seniors often turn to Mrs. Maddox for advice on requirements of certain colleges. She also advises them on the proper tests they should take for college admission. The remaining students consult Mr. Sizemore. He helped them solve their problems and set up schedules for the next year.

In addition to counseling and advising the students in grades eight through twelve, the department's task included keeping up-to-date records. Through the guidance offices passed transcripts for colleges, recommendations for jobs and character references. Continuing beyond the point of graduation, the guidance department has influenced the lives of young people and helped to build a firm foundation for the future. The students say a great, big "Thanks" to their fine counselors.

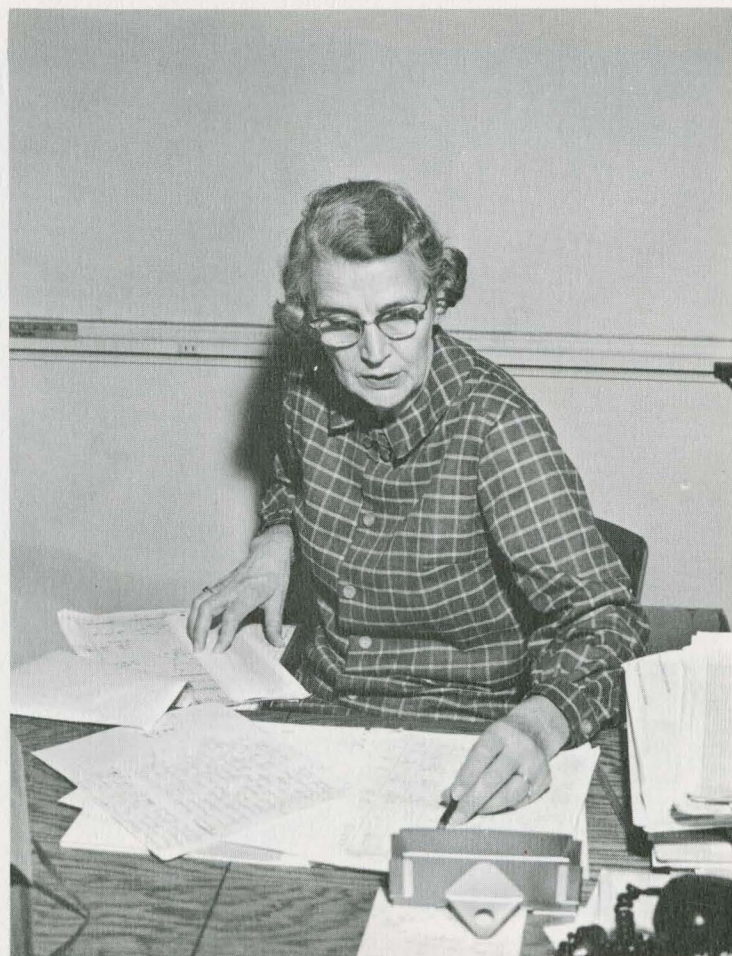

"Oh no, not him again," seems to be Mr. Sizemore's plaintive cry as he tackles another problem as guidance counselor.

"Help, help, help," is the plea Mrs. Maddox hears throughout the day as she rearranges schedules at the beginning of the year.

X-Rated Movies In The Library? No, just Roger Vassar delivering educational films to Mrs. Guthrie, the new assistant librarian.

Center Of All Study Is The Library

Many a quiet moment is spent in the library, either searching for some information or a book, looking at our scrapbook, catching up on the latest magazine or newspaper article, or just spending a few moments with that special someone.

The library functions as this and more.

All eighth grade students spent a full week in the library taking advantage of the library lessons taught by Mrs. Carolyn Lusardi. During the week they were introduced to the card catalog, the reference books available and the library in general.

New to the library was an assistant, Mrs. Adele Guthrie. She helped the students find books, materials for reference, and show films for the teachers.

The library was a great source of supplementary material for the teacher's classes. Many new books, films and filmstrips, and records were placed in the library. The members of the Projectionist Club along with Mrs. Guthrie spent many hours showing films and assisting teachers in using the audio-visual equipment.

Whenever a student went into the library, they found it attractively decorated to suit the season of the year or a special holiday. Being a pleasant place to visit and work, the library served the needs of all the students throughout the year.

Effective Communication Is Ultimate Goal

Sentence patterns, subordination and coordination, William Shakespeare, Pearl Buck, and O. Henry are words and authors students face as they entered William Campbell, whether they were an eighth grader or a senior; however, by graduation they were thoroughly acquainted with English grammar and American and English authors.

"New English," which approached knowledge of grammar from a linguistic point of view, was introduced and emphasized phonetics and proper spelling. Writing themes and reading prose and poetry provided a means of self-expression and better communication.

In addition to the five required English courses, a course in speech and drama was offered. This class helped students to speak distinctly and express themselves. Instructing students in grammar, English teachers strived to form a strong background in the mechanics of written and spoken English. Interpreting literature, teachers attempted to build a foundation for deeper thought and understanding.

Antidisestablishmentarianism will certainly stump Mrs. Yount's eighth grade English students on the vocabulary test she plans to give them.

Math Encourages Abstract Thinking

Extensive courses in mathematics were included in the curriculum in order to increase the technical knowledge necessary to compete in the technical age in which we live. General math courses provided students with the basic fundamentals needed to continue into higher math or build a foundation for business subjects. In Mrs. Pauline Marshall's geometry class, the students were introduced to geometric figures and theorems. Algebra students tried to solve the value of X and Y. The seniors in advanced math delved into higher mathematics as they prepared themselves for college math.

Besides being helpful in important areas of study, mathematics has helped students solve some of the deepest puzzles faced by men. When a student took a course in mathematics, he not only followed the path of a great mathematician, but he also learned the steps to follow in solving numerous problems in everyday life.

Can you find  $2 + 2$  with a compass? No, but with the help of Mrs. Short, the eighth grade math teacher, Roy Davis will be able to bisect this angle.

$\pi r^2$ , no pie are round. This is just one of the things students learn in Mrs. Pauline Marshall's geometry class.

Past Is Used To Interpret Present

Looking to the future through the past made history a stimulating and rewarding course. Geography, world history, American history and government were included in the department. American history aroused a deep respect for the founders of the United States, as students were awakened to their heritage. In government classes current topics were discussed. The theory and practice of communism was taken up, thus it made students aware of other countries. In geography physical features of the world were discussed. Facts of ancient civilizations and empires added spice to world history classes.

From the ranks of this generation the course of future decades have been determined. If the men and women chosen to serve as leaders of tomorrow have failed to instill in themselves the basic principles of government and heritage of the United States, then this generation itself has failed and sealed the destruction of the pillars of democracy. Armed with insight received in social studies classes the future has been perpetuated through the past.

Feeling for the chair, or just stressing a point? Either way, Mr. Lampman tries to make his classes interesting.

1733, 1945, or was it 1751? Well you can be sure that Mr. Goodman, the United States History teacher, knows the right date even if the students don't.

Labs Offer Practical Experience

Clattering test tubes, startling aromas of recent experiments, a display of fish, animals and insects were all signs of busy science students. Whether the course was concerned with biology, physics, chemistry, or general science, the students achieved a knowledge necessary to meet the rapidly changing world of today. The students were intrigued with the mysteries they encountered and were eager to find answers to the questions evoked by their curiosity.

Science projects were a fundamental part of the study of science and took long hours of preparation on the part of the students, as well as the teachers. Scientific reports gave the students a chance to expand in the field of science and make use of the equipment and tools available.

As the year progressed, the students proved to be keenly interested in the fields of science. This stimulated an interest in many of the students who participated in the annual William Campbell Science Fair.

The science department has provided an opportunity for students to explore the wonders of the known and unknown, organic and inorganic materials, the fact and the opinion, and the limits of the earth and the infinity of space.

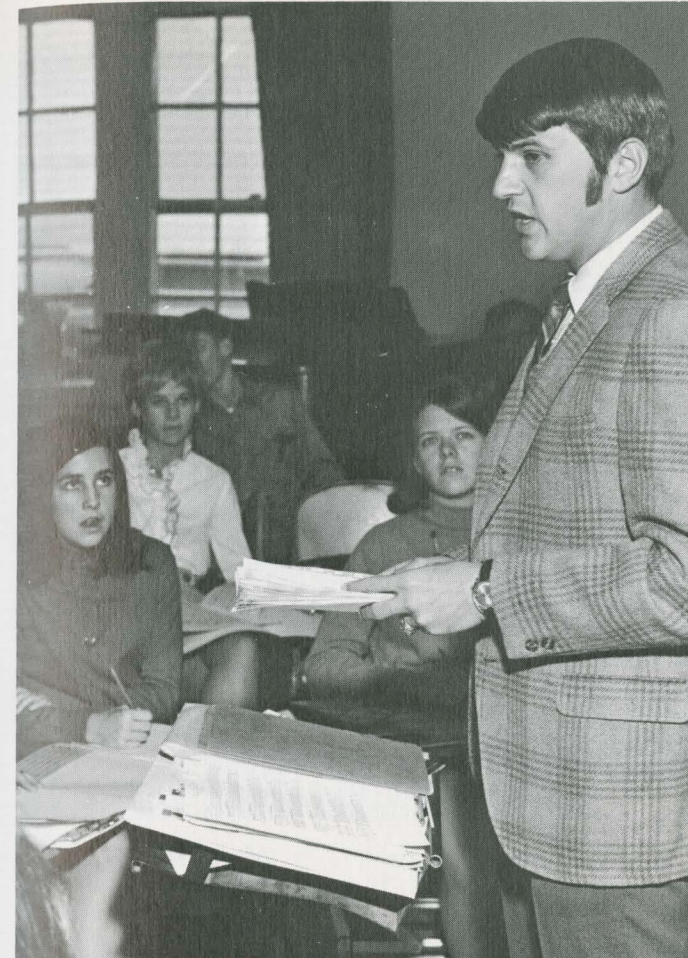

"Get with it people," is one of Mr. Cocke's favorite sayings as he urges his chemistry students to correct their formulas.

Art Is New Experience This Year

The preparation of students with a sound, well-rounded background for creative achievement was the purpose of the Fine Arts Department. This department contributed to the cultural enrichment of many, as the students learned to express their thoughts and moods through music and on canvas.

Halloween masks, Indian weaving, posters and the making of scarves introduced Mr. Keesee's art students to the world of fine arts. Offering competent instruction and an opportunity of self-expression, art courses were designed not only for the artistically inclined students but also for those interested in art as a hobby.

The band and choir presented magnificent performances throughout the year and brought many honors to the school. They provided half-time shows during football season and concerts at Christmas and in the spring. Each group proved to be an integral part of student life at William Campbell. Through constant observation of the able director, Mr. C. Edwin Temples, the band and choir achieved a high degree of excellence in the field of music.

Did somebody say interested? Well, you can certainly tell that Debra Guthrie is involved in band as she listens to Mr. Temples explain a piece of music.

Pleased with her project, Connie Smith smiles as Mr. Keesee displays the block prints she made in art.

"Barefoot In The Forum" Is Success

In keeping with the fast pace of the modern world, students became aware that an understanding of other nations was essential. With this objective in mind, the department endeavored to teach not only the language but the culture of the people.

Through the study of the Spanish language, the student not only learned to speak and write the language, but also they learned to understand the people and their culture. It wasn't all work, the Spanish students had fun also. They decorated their classroom with scenes from Spain and played Spanish records and Spanish Scrabble.

The Latin students not only learned the elements of the so-called "dead language," but pointed out how we are influenced by the things of the past. The Latin classes presented a play in Latin entitled "Barefoot in the Forum".

As never before in history, the world system of communication and travel has drawn the shores of continents into close contact. The harmony and accord of this meeting lies in the degree of understanding and perception on the part of each individual nation.

Through the study and application of language art, students found themselves better suited for citizenship in the world of tomorrow.

¿Habla usted español? Maybe not now, but you will when you take Spanish I, II, or III under the direction of Profesora Fore.

Business Department Marks Year Of Change

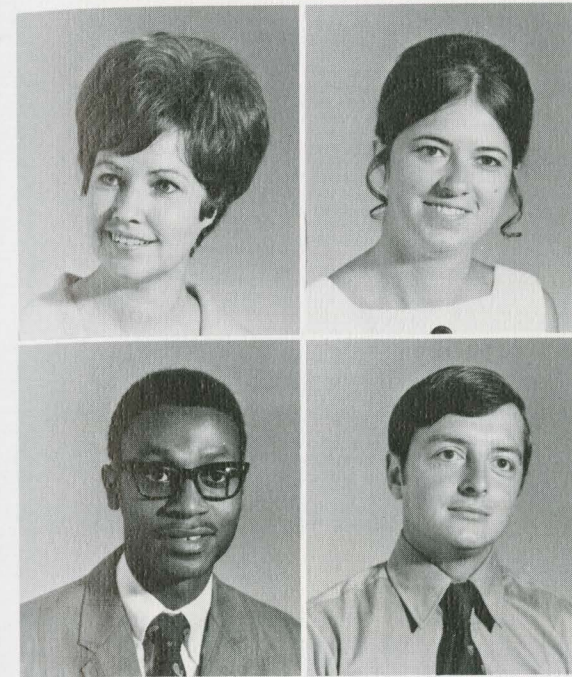

Business courses trained students in secretarial and business fields and future secretaries, stenographers, and executives trained for work ahead. However, business courses were not only taken by those wishing to pursue a business or secretarial career, but also by other students as an aid in academic subjects. Classes of first year typing prepared business students for advance training and college-bound students for the typing of themes and research papers.

Business students became acquainted with the techniques of typing and the fundamentals of shorthand. In bookkeeping, experience was obtained in maintaining records and accounts. All students beginning a business curriculum learned everyday business facts by taking General Business, along with students choosing the course as an elective.

In Mechanical Drawing, Mr. Wrenn's students learned a skill that would enable many of them to obtain jobs immediately after graduation.

Training students for college work, and launching students into the business world, Mrs. Woodall, Mr. Clark, and Mrs. Harris worked as an efficient team in the business department. Unlike academic subjects, vocational courses offered students immediate practical application.

Practical Arts Introduce Work Techniques

Geared to cultivate practical skill, the vocational arts achieved success as students received on-the-job experience.

Through the development of individual projects, the girls in home economics learned to cope with personal and family problems. This class instilled in the minds of the students the importance and rewards of being a homemaker. Garment construction, meal preparation, nutrition and child care were some of the phases of housekeeping emphasized. Home economics students also covered units on boy-girl relationships, preparation for marriage and budget making.

The agriculture and industrial arts department was a very important part of the school. Living in a rural area, students were anxious to learn effective methods of farming. Shop classes included mechanical drawing and general mechanics. These classes offered valuable background to students who wished to pursue careers in drafting, carpentry or engineering. Emphasizing safety, the driver education classes produced safe, skillful drivers genuinely interested in knowing the mechanics of driving.

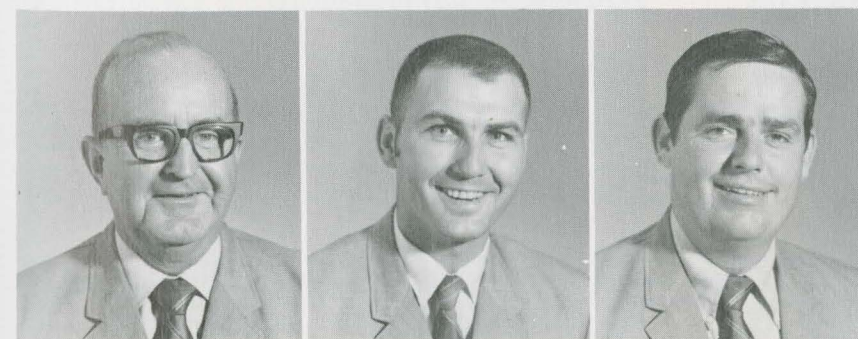

Scholastic knowledge is of no value if it cannot be practically applied. The vocational courses offered the students an insight into the applications of newly acquired skills.

Preparing for a cooking demonstration, Mrs. Seamster assembles her ingredients.

Phys. Ed. Emphasizes Physical Fitness

To be mentally alert one must also be physically fit as emphasized by physical education classes. Following the national trend toward physical fitness, the curriculum of instruction and participation was expanded to include volleyball, basketball, softball, physical fitness tests, track, and gymnastics. Promoting sportsmanship and well-rounded physical development, participation developed self-confidence and stamina.

Health classes contributed to building better personal hygiene habits and a course in first aid enabled students to administer assistance in emergencies. Classes in driver education instructed students in correct methods of defensive driving and the mechanical operations of a car.

Producing physically fit, well-groomed and aware students, the physical education department proved to be an asset to the school and community.

Service Staffs Make WC Better Place

A well balanced meal is the daily task of Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Rosser, Mrs. Moseley, Mrs. Guthrie, and Mrs. Hamlette.

Without the maintenance department William Campbell could not have functioned properly. Trimming the shrubs, keeping the building heated, preparing hot meals, and driving crowded school buses were a few of the innumerable tasks performed by this staff. Efficient custodians helped maintain an appropriate atmosphere for learning. Answering to the needs of the students, this staff was always available to wipe a spill, unlock a door and distribute supplies.

Included in the staff were five ladies in the cafeteria who served balanced hot lunches every day.

Highly qualified bus drivers drove the students to and from school each day and promoted a sense of cooperation and discipline.

These dedicated men and women often go unnoticed but certainly not unappreciated. Students owe a great deal to this unselfish staff who helped William Campbell to be an efficient and systematic school.

Carrying the responsibility of getting students to and from school safely are the student bus drivers, Jerry Jennings, Dennis Nash, Mike Davidson, Roger Vassar, and Ronnie Guthrie.

Preparing physics research, Science Club members, Rick Bowe, Jasper Harvey, Jere Davidson and sponsor Mr. Cocke carry out a purpose of the Club.

Checking the progress of the FHA stationery sale, Betty Dalton finds the campaign to be a success.

Representing the ninth grade in homecoming, an activity of all students, Essie Callahan poses for the cameraman.

Activities

Endless extra-curricular activities provided recreation and leadership experience as students became involved in SCA elections . . . FHA Christmas treats . . . Beta Club candy sales . . . concerts and parades for the band . . . Science Fair projects . . . Art Class Christmas doors . . . VHSL Publications Convention . . . Awards assembly. Working on these various projects throughout the year, club members gained individual experience and group recognition.

FTA Inductees Are Old-Fashioned Teachers

Substituting for Mrs. Short to enable her to leave early, Vickie Jordan performs one of the duties of the FTA members.

Who would ever think of becoming a teacher? Well, surprisingly enough, there are a number of students who do want to be teachers. These students compose the Future Teachers of America. The FTA provided information and experience for students who were interested in becoming teachers. Members were available to serve as teacher's aids throughout the year. They did this by monitoring classes, typing and duplicating tests, and running errands for the teachers. A scholarship was awarded to a deserving senior member of the club.

For initiation the new members are asked to come to school dressed as old maid school teachers or professors. The new members were also asked to wash all the blackboards in the school and clean the band room.

The members acted as guides for the seventh graders on Seventh Grade Day in the spring.

Achievement . . . Leadership . . . Character . . . all marks of the William Campbell Beta Club. This club bestows recognition upon academically industrious students. It encouraged participation in a drive for better class and school standing. In '71 the Betas embarked upon an eventful year with enthusiasm, vigor, and pride.

The first official project of the Beta Club was the sale of the famous "Beta Candy". The annual Beta-Faculty Basketball game offered the students much enjoyment at being able to see their favorite teachers play against the Beta students. The club sent donations to various institutions in memory of former classmates that had been killed in accidents. Another of their many projects was donating books to the library. Scholarships were also awarded to Senior Beta members who had applied for them and had met certain requirements. These were awarded at the annual awards assembly held in the spring.

The highlight of the year was being able to attend the Beta Club Convention, held at the Hotel John Marshall in Richmond. The money raised during the year went toward financing this trip.

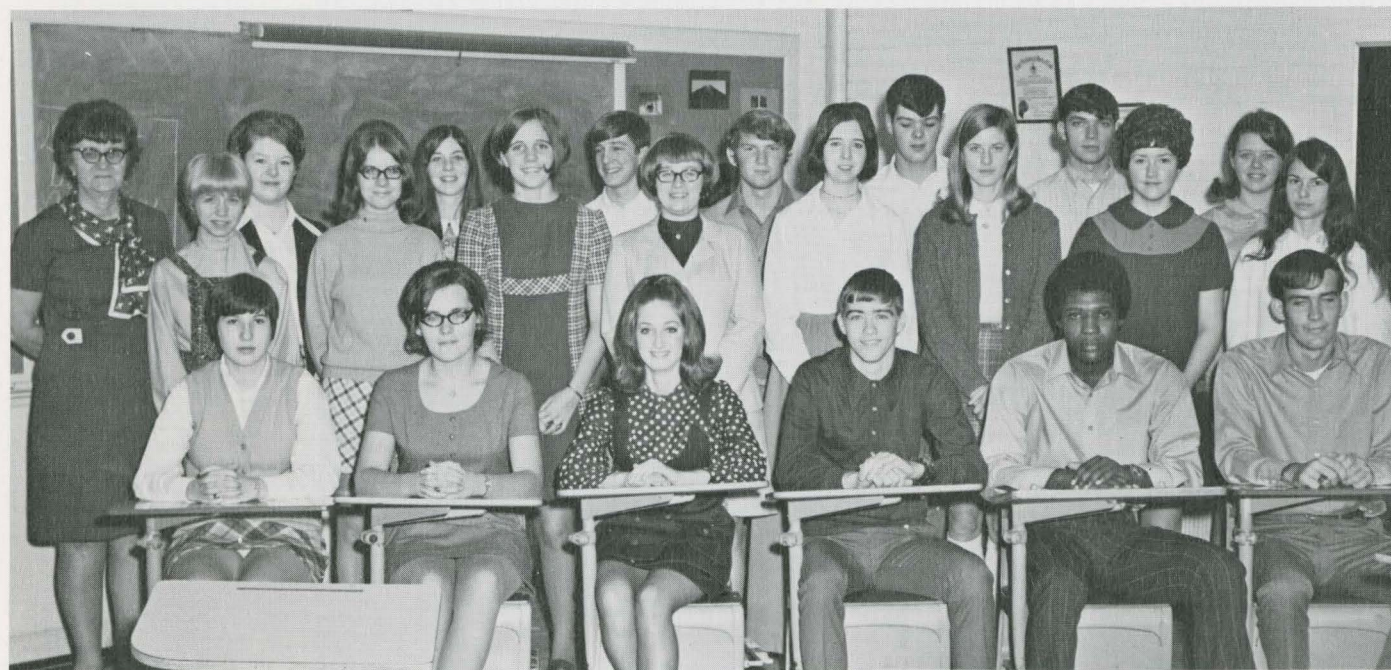

Spring quickly came and brought a close to a most successful year. The new officers were elected, new members were inducted and the Beta Club retired until the fall term of next year.

"WC Today" Is Theme of the 1971 General

Depicting William Campbell today, the GENERAL Staff strove to make '71 moments into memories of '71. Recording the facts, impressions, the good and bad changes of the years on the hill, the staff produced not only a memory book or a history book but a very important memory book.

The staff chose This Is William Campbell Today as its theme. The emphasis was put on the changing scene at W.C. Change was the key word to be used as staffers carefully considered each aspect of 1971 that had to be told in the year's life story. Many study halls were sacrificed and days of Christmas vacation with the hope of producing an award-winning book as in 1970. The staff worked diligently to reach this goal. Trying to keep pace with the changing yearbook standards and structure, Co-Editors Martha Wilson and Ginger Ward and Advisor Mrs. Judith Harris employed ideas and techniques learned at the VHSL Publications Workshop at UVA in Charlottesville and from Mr. Arnold Ward, the Delmar Representative.

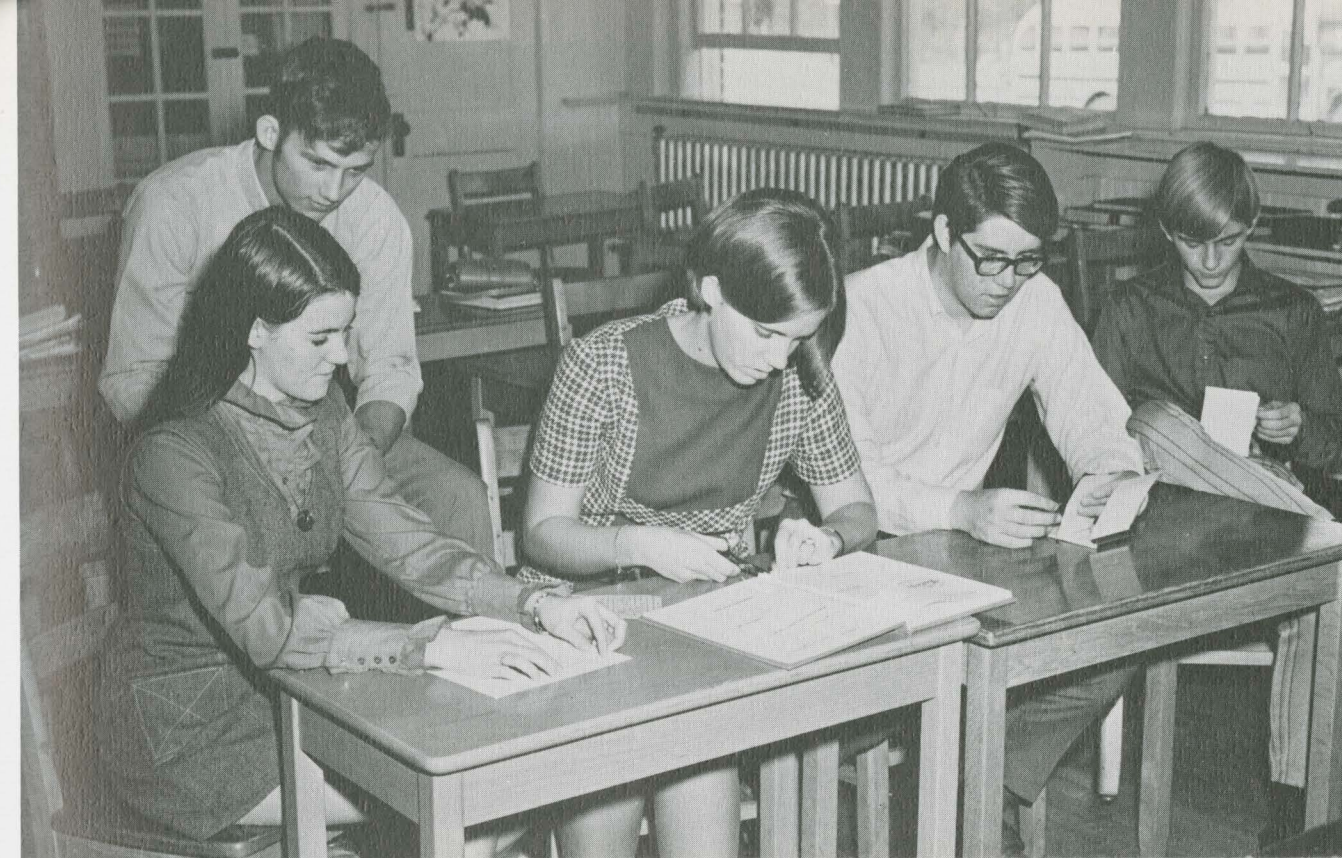

On the business end, the staff members along with other interested students at the school sold ads. Donna Ward and Donna Roark sold subscriptions. Dale Carey prepared the index. The typing was done by Donna Ward. Brenda Tanner was in charge of the entire advertising section. Every staff member pitched in to help sort the name pictures.

In November the staff had the great honor of announcing that the 1970 GENERAL had placed first in Division II of the V.H.S.L.

The last page was finally mailed and work ceased, the staff settled down with high hopes of a successful book and plans for another year.

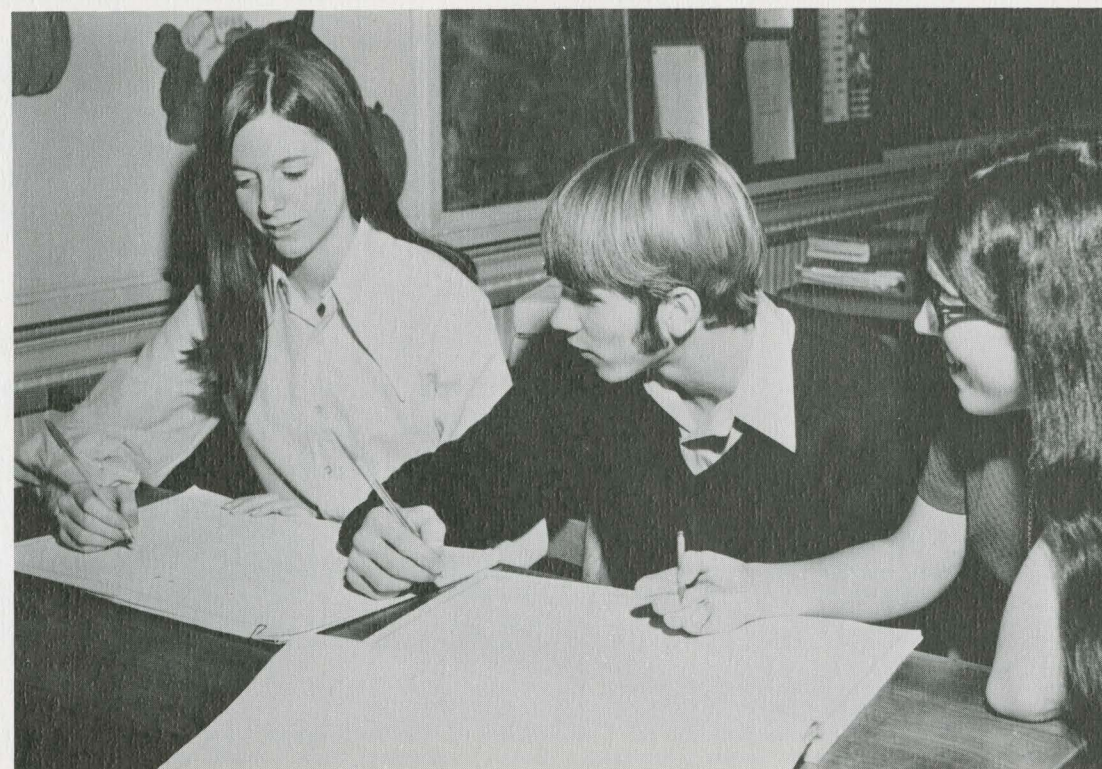

Heading the '71 General Staff, Co-Editors Ginger Ward and Martha Wilson draw up pages for the yearbook.

Attempting to draw up pages from the dummy master layout forms was just one of the jobs of Dale Carey, Reggie Smith, and Donna Wilson.

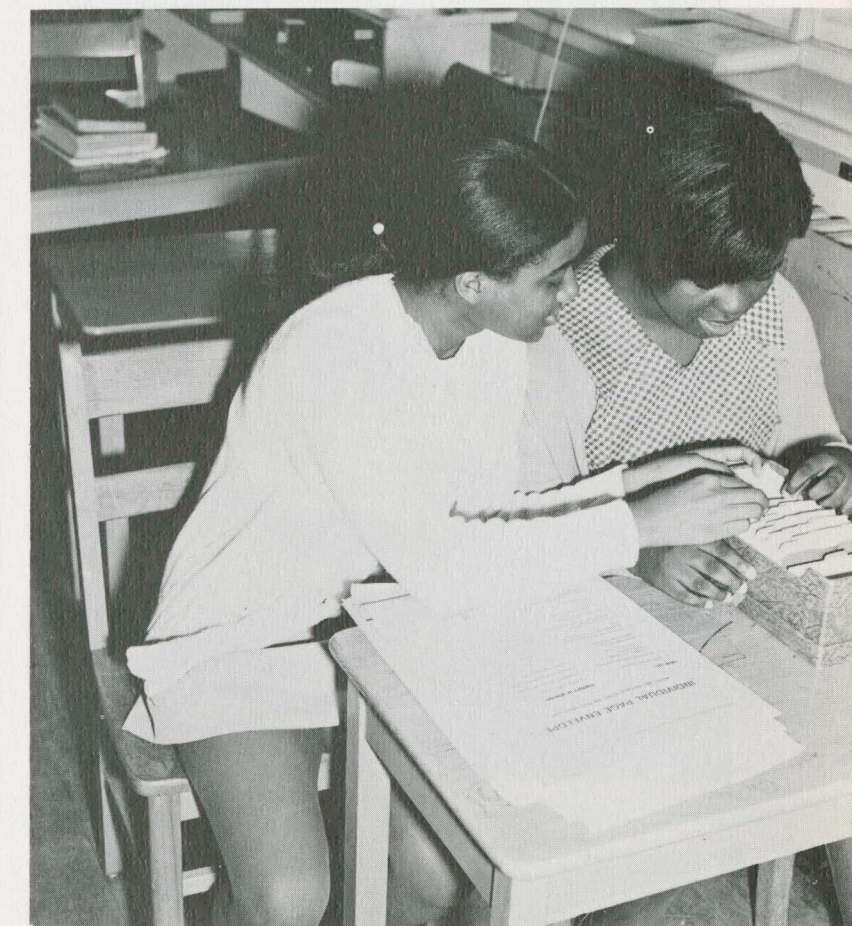

Checking the receipts for the advertisements placed by our supporters and putting them attractively on the ad page is the duty of Brenda Elder, Mike Davidson, Brenda Tanner, Jimmy Elder and Ricky Goodman.

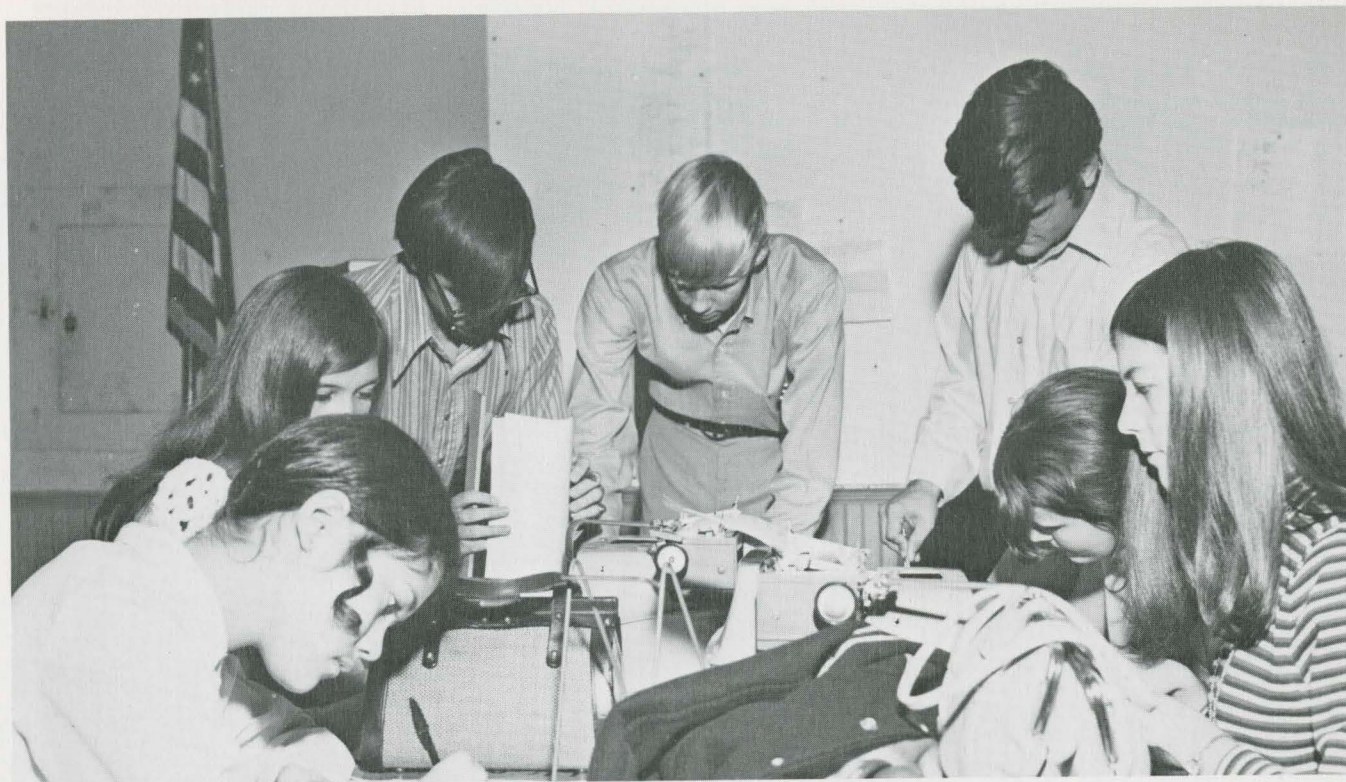

Working on the student and faculty directory for the '71 General are Essie Callaham and Carolyn Nowlin.

The importance of keeping accurate football scores is depicted by John Martin and Richard Clark.

Working hard on The Command Post are newspaper staffers Patty Nash, Merle Puckett, Ricky Bowe, Alvin Howard, Johnson Thurman, Faye Bell and Pam Clark

Checking the files for their front page story and layout are Editor Johnson Thurman and staff member Alvin Howard.

WC Echo Becomes The Command Post

Another part of the changing scene at William Campbell concerned the newspaper. From Vox Ducis to The Echo to The Command Post, the newspaper changed. The Command Post provided the student body with school news and events as they happened.

Publishing eight papers during the year kept The Command Post Staff busy writing articles, drawing layout and typing. Under the direction of their sponsor Mr. Kenneth Booth and the leadership of Johnson Thurman, Editor, the staff strove to create a true picture of the school's events and to meet the all too soon deadlines.

Using and building on ideas and methods from the old Echo, the William Campbell Command Post Staff produced a successful, informative and popular newspaper. Striving to show the month's and year's events, The Command Post immortalized 1971 and made fleeting memories permanent in print.

Business Department Initiates FBLA

Marilyn Clark, first president of the FBLA, sorts Tom Watt merchandise. The club made over $500 in its initial money-making project.

The FBLA, a newly organized club, was formed to create better interest in the business courses. The club wrote its own constitution, received a charter, and is affiliated with the National Business Leaders of America. The club was organized with the following purposes in mind: 1. To develop competent, aggressive business leadership. 2. To strengthen the confidence of young men and women in themselves and their work. 3. To create more interest in the intelligent choice of business occupations. 4. To encourage men and women in the development of individual projects and in establishing themselves in business. 5. To encourage young persons to improve the home and community. 6. To participate in worthy undertakings for the improvement of business and the community. 7. To develop character, prepare for useful citizenship, and foster patriotism.

The FBLA carried out various projects during the year. The school lunch menu was typed and distributed. The school store was operated by the club. A scholarship to a deserving business student was offered. Members were also available to assist teachers and to babysit during the PTSA meetings. Programs were also given in assembly and for a PTSA meeting.

Mike Elder and Jason Carwile study Mechanical Drawing as a prerequisite to joining the Industrial Arts Club.

Industrial Arts Club Makes Appearance In 1970

To create interest in and further the development of the industrial arts program at William Campbell, an Industrial Arts Club was formed under the direction of industrial arts teacher, Mr. Melvin Wrenn.

The Industrial Arts Club acquaints pupils with the technological environment, with American industry, and with the many components of the material culture. Since the American culture is distinctly and uniquely characterized as industrial, it becomes the function of the Industrial Arts Club to give pupils insight and understanding of the technological nature of the culture.

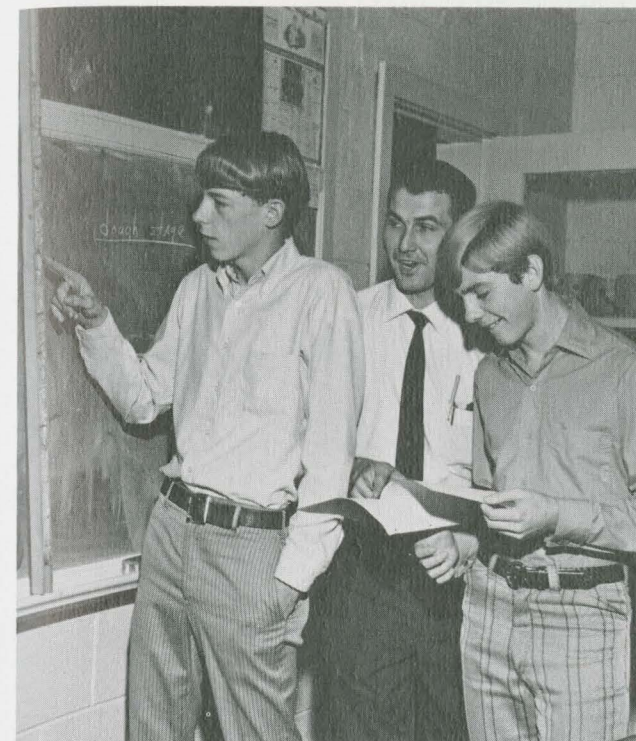

Students have an opportunity to develop interest, uncover talents, explore technical and applied science fields and study occupations. The Industrial Arts Club is a charter member of the Virginia Industrial Arts Student Association. The club will be involved in the Spring Festival in Lynchburg; although, its activities will be primarily centered within the local school.

Keep Virginia Green Is Meaning of KVG

Checking the different types of bark are KVG'ers Bruce Blanks and Ricky Goodman along with sponsor Mr. J. D. Puckette.

Dedicated to the conservation of Virginia's natural resources, The Keep Virginia Green boys proved to be a tremendous asset to the surrounding communities of the school.

As a service club, the KVG rendered assistance to the forest service and other agencies in the prevention of forest fires and in fighting of forest fires which broke out during the year in surrounding areas.

Membership for the KVG Crews is open to any boy enrolled in vocational agriculture courses and over fifteen years of age. William Campbell sponsored several KVG Crews this year. Each crew was headed by a student leader. One day during the year the members of the crews spent the day in Rustburg taking training in the correct techniques of conservation and of fighting forest fires. Exemplifying the importance of the KVG Crews was the calling out of our crews to fight a forest fire immediately after their return to William Campbell at the end of their day of initial training.

Service Clubs Coordinate The Library Services

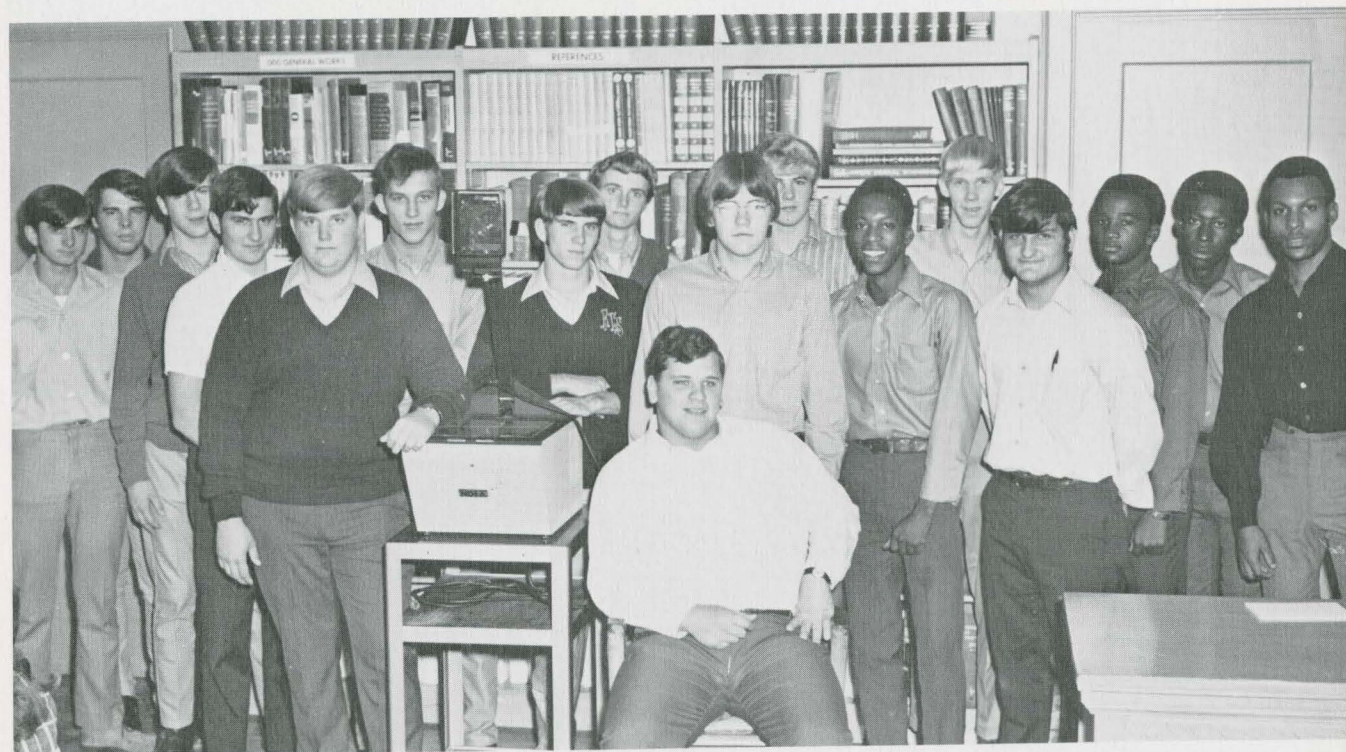

Providing an opportunity for boys interested in audio-visual equipment to use this interest to serve the students and teachers, the Projectionist Club was one of the most active service clubs at William Campbell. Under the guidance and leadership of Mrs. Carolyn Lusardi and Mrs. Adell Guthrie, sponsors of the club, the members learned the correct use and maintenance of projectors and other audio-visual equipment. Using their study hall periods, the members assisted the teachers in the setting up and the showing of films for instructional purposes in the individual classrooms. This proved to be an indispensable aid to the teachers.

Assisting Mrs. Lusardi and Mrs. Guthrie in the efficient operation of the library proved to be interesting and hard work for the members of the Library Club. The club undertook many duties in the library. These included the checking in and out of books, writing overdue slips and assisting students and teachers with their research in the library. Another of their many duties included making the library more attractive by putting up interesting bulletin boards.

These two service clubs, the Projectionist and the Library Club, completed a successful year by striving to make the services of the library more accessible to the students and teachers of William Campbell.

Reviewing the proper techniques of operating an overhead projector are Johnson Thurman, Chris Holt and Reggie Smith.

Enchanting the audience at both the Christmas and Spring Concerts and at many school assemblies, The Madrigal composed of Nancy Brooks, Mike Rudder, Evelyn DeJarnette, Dennis Burnette, Patty Nash, David Waller, Becky Yount, Ronnie Austin, Catherine Dunaway prove that practice does make perfect.

Choral Groups Enchant Audiences

Under the direction of Mr. C. Edwin Temples, the William Campbell Mixed Chorus continued to uphold its tradition of fine performances.

As their first formal appearance, the Mixed Chorus presented their annual concert in observance of the Christmas holidays. On December 22, 1970, the audience was entertained with a varied selection of Christmas carols and hymns. The selections included "Snowbird," "I Wonder As I Wander," and "Rejoice, The Lord Is King."

The Mixed Chorus is made up of students enrolled in the mixed chorus class and other students not enrolled in the class but with sufficient interest in music to be willing to come to school at eight o'clock in the morning for practice.

Made up of eight talented girls is the Girls' Ensemble. The Ensemble made its second appearance at the Christmas concert presented by the Music Department. The audience was both moved and impressed with the brilliant performance of these eight girls. The Madrigal also entertained at the Christmas and Spring Concerts.

Representing the Mixed Chorus in the All-Regional Chorus were Mike Rudder, David Waller, Ronnie Austin, Evelyn DeJarnette, Becky Yount, Catherine Dunaway, Cynthia Vassar, and Lorna Jefferson.

As a climax to a highly successful year, the Mixed Chorus, Girls' Ensemble and Madrigal presented its delightful concert on May 15, 1971.

Musical Generals Continue Superb Performances

Under the capable direction of Mr. C. Edwin Temples, the "Marching Generals" and the concert band began another year of industrious work. Practices started early in the year in hopes of attaining many perfected performances. Early morning, day and after school rehearsals kept the Generals on their toes.

Sparked by crowd enthusiasm, the band treated the spectators with excellent halftime shows during football games. The "Marching Generals" helped to usher in the "Age of Aquarius" at homecoming in October. Viewers of the Brookneal and Altavista Christmas parades all witnessed the brilliance of the band's performance. In every event the Generals proved to be competent representatives of William Campbell. The band placed third in the marching units in the Altavista Christmas parade. They competed with twelve other marching units.

Bringing honors to the band and William Campbell, Cynthia Vassar was chosen for All-Regional Band. The concert band, along with the Mixed Chorus and Girls' Ensemble and Madrigal presented a superb performance in their annual Christmas and Spring Concerts.

Majorettes Add Color, Sparkle To Band

Whether it was halftime at a football game or at a Christmas parade, the "Marching Generals" were led by four talented and lovely majorettes with their flashing, twirling batons.

With flags flying high and smiling faces, the William Campbell Drill Team added much to the band. Whether marching with the band in parades or performing its routines at halftime football shows, the drill team performed with excellence. Desire, determination, and many long hours of practice lay behind all the appearances of the majorettes and drill team.

As mystic rings of fire encircled the beautifully attired majorettes, the fans forgot the cold weather as sighs of awe and amazement rose from the stands in proclamation of the masterful, fiery performance, a well known feat of the General majorettes.

With long hours of practice and the talent of Scotty Hendricks, head majorette, the dance routines and twirling became an entertaining addition to the band's performance. Fans will long remember the unforgettable performance of the majorettes during homecoming halftime to such popular songs as "Aquarius/Let the Sunshine In," and "Raindrops Falling on My Head."

Twirling fire to brighten up half time at our Homecoming game majorettes: Debra Guthrie, Scottie Hendricks, and Cynthia Hendricks executed their routine.

FHA Represents "A Growing Heritage"

The home is an important unit in today's life. To prepare girls for the homes of the future was the aim of the FHA. The Future Homemakers of America strove to prepare the girls for this task through club work and classes in home economics.

The major emphasis for the year was "Our World — A Growing Heritage." World problems were discussed, different Christmas customs were presented and topics of interest were discussed during the monthly meetings. All programs tried to point out to the members how they relate to the changing world today.

Outside of the school activities, two federation rallies were held. The Fall Rally was held on October 20, 1970, at Rustburg High School and the Spring Rally on March 30, 1971, at Brookville High School. FHA Week was observed in April. The members carried out activities relating to the theme for the year. A successful year ended with Mother-Daughter Entertainment and installation of officers in May.

The Future Homemakers really prepared the girls of today to be the women of tomorrow. As the year ended, the girls were well prepared to make the necessary adjustments in a fast-paced and changing society.

FFA Members Attend Convention In Kansas City

The farmer is the backbone of America and to strengthen this backbone and prepare future farmers was the aim of the FFA. The Future Farmers of America is an extra-curricular activity having its origin and roots in a definite part of the school program. Members learned through active participation how to conduct and take part in a public meeting, to speak in public, to solve their own problems, to finance themselves and to assume civic responsibility. FFA is built on leadership, character, scholarship, improved agriculture, organized recreation, citizenship, and patriotism. Members strove to exemplify their motto: Learning to do; Doing to learn; Earning to live; Living to serve.

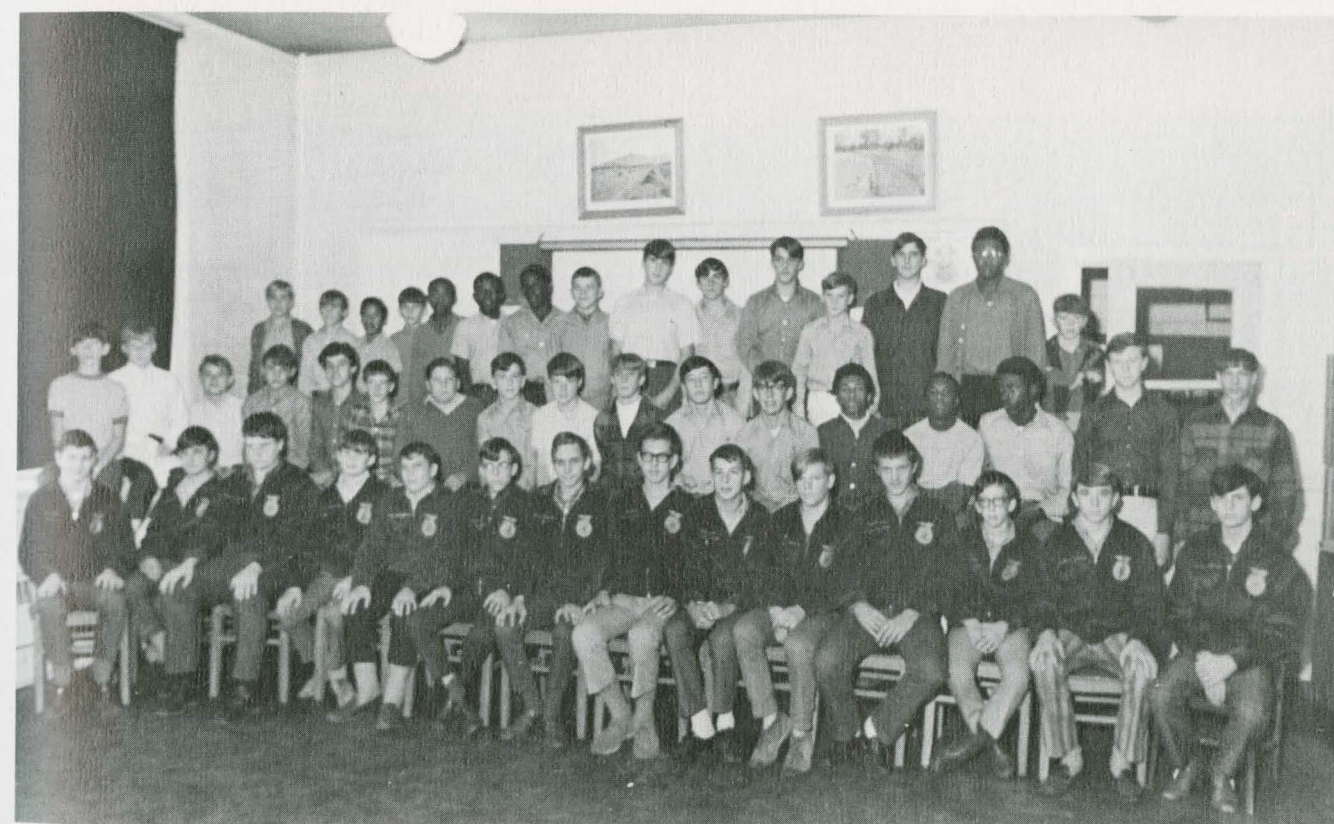

Many long hours of hard work were spent in preparation for competition in the many contests offered on the State and Federation levels. This hard work paid off in each case as the FFA teams were always winners. Several FFA members who served on these winning teams went to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri in October, 1970.

Closing a year of hard work and much success, the members of the FFA began planning for their individual projects for the summer months and for next year.

Science Club Encourages Research, Awareness

One of William Campbell's most active clubs promoted science. Naturally, this was the Science Club. Under the capable leadership of Mrs. Whitlow, Mr. Cocke, Mr. Hardison and Mr. Kleinberg, the club strove to attain three major goals: to promote interest in science, to stimulate thinking among students, and to encourage research.

Emphasizing areas of research and competition, the club members participated in the annual William Campbell Science Fair. Guest speakers and films spiced the club's programs and stimulated much interest throughout the year. A long-range project of the Science Club was to develop a nature trail through the many acres of land owned by the school to be used by all science classes in the school. This project came closer to becoming a reality.

Affiliated with the Virginia Junior Academy of Science, the Science Club served as a relay of ideas and a benefit to the science department.

Dramatic Arts Furthered By Club

Winning honors in Forensics last year were Dale DeJarnette, Martha Wilson, Mike Gilliland, Andrew Evans, and Pam Clark.

The whole world is a stage and everyone is an actor. That may be true, but W.C. changed that just a little. Not every student at William Campbell was an actor, but the members of the Dramatics Club worked to become actors or actresses.

This club was an out-growth from the Speech and Dramatics Class. The sponsors were Mrs. Scott and Mr. Edwin Temples. Membership was open to any student interested in dramatics.

The activities were fun and varied. The Speech and Drama Class presented an original play that they wrote in class. Mr. Temples demonstrated stage make-up on one guinea pig.

Try-outs were held second semester for One-Act Play Festival. This was held sometime in April.

The Dramatics Club provided the members with an opportunity to gain experience through working and participating in plays. Those who earned a minimum of ten points by doing work related to dramatics were eligible to become a Thespian, a national honorary society.

Awareness and concern for the world situation took Bruce Holt, Lorna Jefferson, Martha Wilson, Janet Riddlebarger, and Jasper Harvey to Girls' and Boys' State.

Excellence in choral music caused Lorna Jefferson, Catherine Dunaway, Evelyn DeJarnette, Becky Yount, Cynthia Vassar, Mike Rudder, David Waller, and Ronnie Austin to be chosen as members of the All-Regional Chorus.

Sports

As the athletic year drew to a close, fresh were the memories of a 1-9-0 football season . . . the track teams' terrific showing in district meets . . . a homecoming defeat . . . girls' basketball . . . heart-breaking basketball games for boys' varsity, junior varsity and eighth grade teams . . . cries of "Remember last year!" . . . nine screaming cheerleaders . . . a year of experience. These and many more were the components of a unique style of athletics, synonymous with the name of William Campbell.

Representing William Campbell, Larry Eades consistently placed high in the mile run event at track meet after track meet.

Serving as pitcher and first baseman for the General diamond men, Rick Purcell performs well at both positions.

Roger Waller uses his extraordinary speed to zero in on a Rustburg Red Devil.

Keeping up the spirit of the team and the spectators makes cheerleaders Penny Holt, Ginny Herndon and Diane Davidson an integral part of every football game.

WC Gridders Place Last In District Again

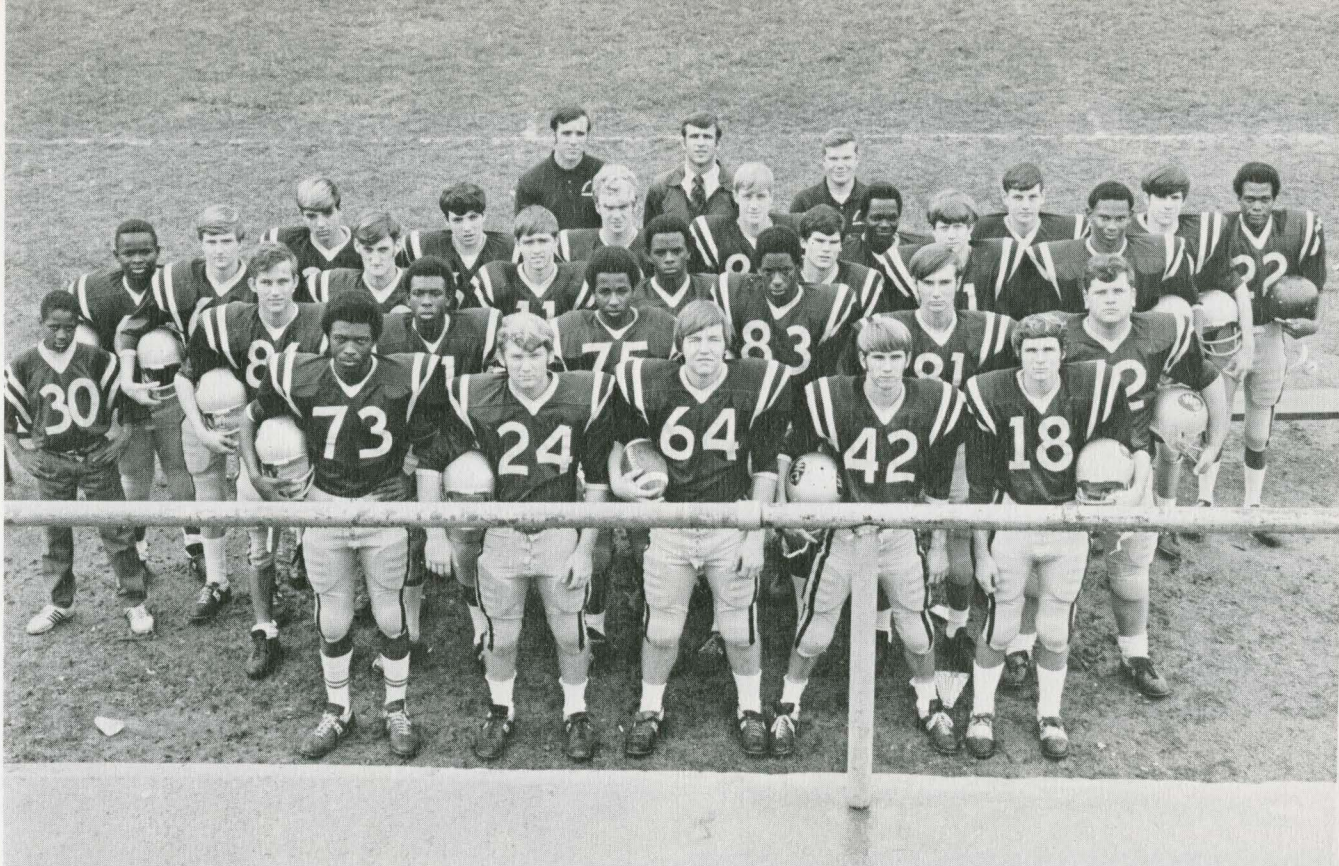

The drive for victory for the General players and coaches began in early August. During the pre-season practice the General gridmen planted cleats and cracked helmets in vigorous drills to develop the fundamental skills mandatory to victorious performances. September 4, a night that had been circled on so many calendars, pictured in so many minds, and prepared for by so many long hours of excruciating practice, found the Generals overwhelmingly victorious over Randolph Henry 38-0.

The remainder of the season proved a disastrous disappointment to the General eleven and to the loyal fans. The William Campbell gridmen were sent to the locker room with defeats in each of the remaining nine games. Even though they were on the downhill swing, the General gridders kept their spirit and confidence as they took the field in each game and put forth their effort in each game.

With consistent improvement and adjustment and a determination to get back on the winning trail, a better record is expected to materialize for the 1971 team.

JV Gridders Gain Valuable Experience

The 1970 football season held for the "Baby Generals" an overwhelming disappointment. Having lost their star players to the varsity team, this was a year of building for the Junior Varsity squad. After such a successful season the year before, the youngest of the General gridders, squaring off against some of the toughest opposition in the district, won one game from Rustburg and tied Altavista.

With each game, the Junior Varsity improved consistently. Individually and as a team, they gained the experience and agility vital to interscholastic competition.

Teaching the fundamentals of passing to quarterback Allen Harper is only one of Coach Clark's duties as JV Coach.

General Talents Surpass Record Indications

Opening their '70-'71 schedule against the Statesmen of Randolph Henry, the General Cagers gathered their wits and talents into a decisive victory combination defeating their opponents 70-39. Playing host to delegations from Brookville and Gretna, the Generals amassed two more victories. The WC hoopers exhibited some cool playing, ball handling, and strategy in the game with Rustburg defeating the Red Devils by one point with the final score being 52-51. The attempt to remain victorious was shattered by an overpowering Altavista defense and the Generals went down in defeat 60-51.

Regaining a slender lead in the Seminole District race by defeating Staunton River 64-47, the Generals were no longer tied with Appomattox for first place. This number one spot was held only until the next week's game with Appomattox. Playing for the top spot, the Raiders handed the Generals a defeat. The game went into overtime when the Generals' James Word hit a jumper to knot the score at 63-63 as the buzzer sounded, ending regulation play. With 25 seconds remaining in an overtime period, Ron McCoy hit on a three-pointer to put the game out of WC's reach.

Baby Generals Become Accomplished Cage Set

Executing cage maneuvers in the style of true basketball, the General junior varsity highlighted their impressive 1971 showing by capturing victory after victory. Gaining force entry into the ranks of the best teams, the rambling General cage set stifled foes from Randolph Henry, Brookville, Holy Cross, Gretna, and Rustburg. In defiance of the vain efforts of the infant Generals, the cagers from Altavista defeated William Campbell in a triple overtime game 64-58. Going got rough the latter half of the season with defeats from Rustburg, Appomattox and others.

Following in the footsteps of the junior varsity, the eighth grade squad found the encounters with the opposition to be mingled with much disappointment and little triumph. Striving for experience and success under the leadership of Coach Lampman, the newcomers fell to large defeats from Brookville, Rustburg, Altavista, Appomattox and others.

Explaining techniques of ball handling to his Co-captains Al Davis and Chuck Austin is Coach George Clark.

Trackmen Defeat AAA Powers

General Hurdler Roger Waller leads the field as he clears the last hurdle.

The initiation of Cross Country was a roaring success. The team, captained by Larry Eades and Ricky Goodman, finished the season 8-6. The team defeated Altavista three times, Amherst Twice, Holy Cross twice and gave Alleghany County its only loss of the season. Other noteworthy occurrences for the team were: Runner-Up in the District Meet, Sixth Place in the Lynchburg Invitational, Eleventh Place in the Halifax Invitational and Ninth Place in the State Meet.

In its first meet, the Indoor Trackmen defeated such AAA powers as Garfield, Liberty and Amherst. In its second meet, the Generals showed they were a District power by defeating arch rivals Gretna, Rustburg, Altavista and Staunton River. Roger Waller led the way with 34 points and is considered the best hurdler in the state. Other record breakers on the team are Larry Eades in the mile event and Al Guthrie in the pole vault.

With the same team members on the outdoor track team and continued improvement, the Generals will dethrone Nelson County as district champions. Right on Generals!

Keith Jackson, General cinderman, shows the form that won him a medal in the Colonial Relays in Williamsburg.

General Glovemen Show Promise, Capability

Waymond Elliott tosses one in to Richie Snell for a quick doubleplay at second.

Starting the season with a defeat to Chatham 11-7, on March 26, 1970 and a win over Tunstall 4-1 on March 31, 1970, the Generals followed with a pair of defeats to Dan River and Gretna. The Generals buckled down and bounced back, handing Nelson County the short end of a 10-7 score. The glory was short-lived, however, as the tough Gretna team again rolled over William Campbell 6-5. Undaunted by the next defeat to Nelson County, the Generals defeated Altavista and Staunton River. With a losing record of 5-13, the Generals were thwarted by teams from Staunton River, Tunstall, Rustburg, Appomattox, Holy Cross and Chatham.

One of the most important achievements of the season was the experience in diamond play gained by the General glovemen. With this knowledge in the dugout and all of last year's players except Costello Callaham returning, team success in 1970-71 is assured and championship play is inevitable.

Experience Salvaged From Season Conflicts

In accordance with the increased demand for an athletic program in which girls could participate interscholastically, William Campbell provided the girls of the school with a varsity basketball team this year as it has done for a number of years. The school also gave the girls a chance to participate on a softball and volleyball team during the year.

Striving to live up to the glory achieved by last year's girl netters who won the 1969-70 District Championship over Tunstall 37-27, this year's squad had its work cut out for it. Having tournament high scorer Janet Riddlebarger back certainly helped matters.

Suffering a small number of setbacks during the 1970-71 cage season play, the descendants of Eve bejeweled their winter season play with victory after victory. Although these victories proved to be the tangible glories achieved by these spirited girls, immeasurable quantities of experience, confidence and pride were obtained.

Gimmicks, Yells Are Among Spirit Getters

The unruly crowd slowly filled the bleachers to capacity. A tenseness gripped the congregation. Anticipation slowly created a vacuum within the gym or on the field. Suddenly cries of "Here come the Generals" arose, and the mob that had moments before been a conglomeration of straggling individuals was transformed into a single unit of spirit and enthusiasm.

What ominous force instigated this dramatic change? The answer lies within the hearts of the blue and gray clad girls, who so vividly displayed their team support on both floor and field. This is an association known as the cheerleaders.

Making their appearance in support of varsity and junior varsity squads, the girls in blue and gray did more than warm up the crowd for the sports happening yet to behold. Their energies proved inexhaustible, their faith unflinching and their originality and brilliance of style unceasing.

Gimmicks and banners, place mats and Tootsie Rolls, tears, the long hours of unending practice and the Homecoming festivities were the golden moments of '71 as seen from the inside of a General cheerleading uniform.

People

Each year at W.C. served as a milestone in the long and hard journey from eighth grade to senior to graduation. On this journey students encountered new faces and new experiences such as frightened, awkward eighth graders . . . stuck combination locks . . . tardy bells . . . class officers . . . school spirit assemblies . . . class dues . . . rivalry between juniors and seniors . . . senior day . . . graduation. Fitting these pieces into the puzzle of school life, students created a lasting picture, a memory to ponder in years to come.

Mighty, Mighty Seniors Hang It Up

The class of 1971 greeted their final year at WCHS with mixed emotions. To some the year was sad as friends would soon be lost in the confusion of the future. To others the year was a time to celebrate the completion of twelve school years. Whether 1970-71 marked a beginning or an end, seniors realized the year's importance and strove to make it a successful one. The torch was passed and the challenge accepted as the senior class took the helm. Characterized by strong leadership and academic ability, seniors shouldered full responsibility as school and community leaders. Class activities provided time for play. Seniors played as they broke the monotony of the school week with Senior Day. Spring held for the Class of 71 the final opportunities for fellowship among their classmates as seniors were presented with the Junior-Senior Prom.

With the completion of the year, seniors completed a twelve year school career. Upon graduation, the class of '71 headed in different directions perhaps to unite once again, perhaps not.

Them Through Year

New responsibilities and high goals were part of each junior as the Class of 1972 plunged into an unforgettable year. Led by capable officers and under the guidance of understanding advisers, the juniors proved to be an outstanding class. A giant step toward academic achievement were the P.S.A.T., Merit Scholarship, and the College Boards.

Raising funds for the Junior-Senior Prom was a major project. Juniors took a big part in the annual magazine drive and received around $400 in profits. Confusion reigned in the spring with the ordering of class rings. The large variety of stones made the decision difficult.

As May drew near, juniors worked eagerly to make the Junior-Senior Prom the biggest social event of the year. Theme, decoration, and refreshment committees labored long hours preparing for the 1971 prom.

The year ended and the junior class realized the responsibilities and challenges that lay ahead and anxiously awaited the senior year with mixed emotions.

Sophomores Attack Additional Responsibilities

No longer underclassmen, yet not quite upperclassmen, sophomores were the "in between" class. Having finished two years and having two ahead, tenth graders had reached the half way point of their high school career. By this time sophomores were well established at William Campbell and experienced in school life. Some definite goals had been set for the future and some definite plans had been made for attaining those goals.

Realizing the necessity of education in the competitive world of today, tenth graders chose courses of study and began to plan for college or work. Struggling with the usual tenth grade courses, sophomores undertook Biology, Geometry, and American History.

Caught in the whirl of activities, tenth graders took full advantage of the opportunities offered them. Sophomores composed most of JV teams, were active members in clubs, and were leaders in the school and community.

The class of 1973 had to get used to its role as an older class. Sophomores felt the responsibility to be examples to the lower class and impress upon them the image of an ideal student.

Chosen to lead the class of '73 are Betty Ann Yoder, Patty Davidson, Eva Jean Rudder, Barry Caldwell, Greg Guthrie, and Bonnie Tibbs.

Peers Choose Snell To Lead The Class

Guided by a year of experience, freshmen entered their second high school year with more poise and assurance. Aware of the opportunities offered them, ninth graders chose to learn, to participate, and to accept responsibilities. The freshman's role as a William Campbell General became more evident as he delved deeper into school life.

With some destination in mind, ninth graders headed toward the future. For the first time in their school career, elective courses spiced the freshman's required schedule. Algebra I, Science 9, and foreign language built the foundation upon which students would build their academic career.

Participation was essential as ninth graders discovered the importance of club membership and extra curricular activities. Taking their places in FHA, FFA, Science Club, and Latin Club, freshmen filled the ranks of young club members to which the torch of leadership could be passed.

Learning, participating, accepting responsibility, freshmen grew, gained experience, and completed another year of high school.

Willing and able to lead their class are freshman officers Randy Eades, Anne Snell, Denise Goodman, Doug DeJarnette, and Joe Lusardi.

In September 151 eager eighth graders began the first of five high school years. Stepping into a new world of strange surroundings, unfamiliar people and difficult assignments, William Campbell's newcomers were awe-stricken but hopeful.

These newcomers made valuable contributions to WC in academics and in sports. To the class of 1975 fresh ideas and talents brought recognition and a sense of belonging. Warmly welcomed by the student body, this new addition soon became acclimated to high school life. The 151 scared, awkward "Baby Generals" grew to become responsible citizens in the school community.

Launching careers of tomorrow in plans of today, eighth graders sought the advice of guidance counselors when choosing courses of study. Preparations were begun and steps were taken in the path each individual chose to follow.

Diamonds, cameos, opals, etc., are a girl's best friend and readily available in Brookneal, as Brenda Elder shows, at Elder & Tibbs Jewelers.

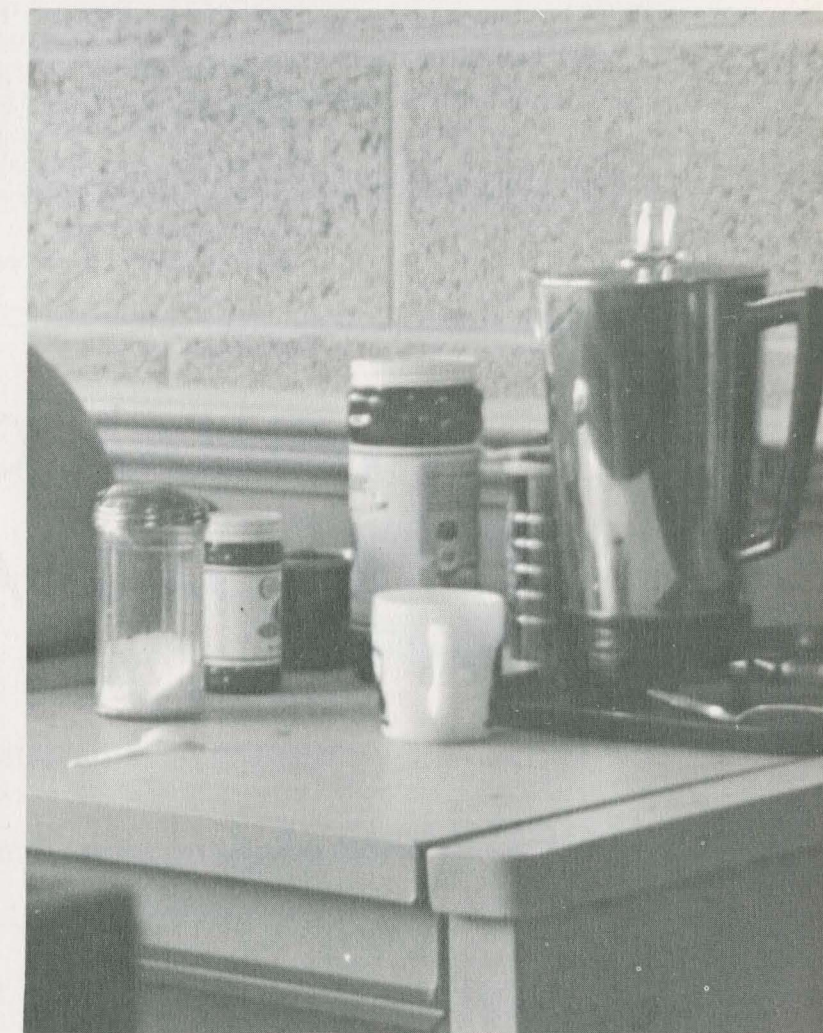

Bass Weeguns, Villagers, Bobbie Brooks, Puritan, and Campus are just a few of the well known names in clothing that the Brookneal Department Store carries. Dale Carey models just one of her outfits from the store.

The enchanting beauty of our cheerleaders Ginny Herndon and Debi Conner is enhanced at homecoming by flowers from Glenn's.

The beat of community life sounds the cooperation between the school and community, as students recalled a coke after school . . . blue and gray ribbon . . . window shopping . . . club refreshments . . . gas for getting to school . . . and back . . . haircuts before school . . . a hamburger after the game . . . notebooks, paper and pencils . . . flowers for homecoming . . . a savings account for college. By patronizing local merchants and businesses, students filled their needs of today and prepared for needs of tomorrow.

A Moment for Reflecting . . .

The year came quickly to an end.
The time came for reflecting on the changes that had been experienced.
The good and bad moments were looked upon as part of the life at William Campbell. It was a time to catch each fleeting moment, a time to recall memories, and a time to transform these memories into history.
These are the reflections of 1971.

Making a change for the better are Bruce Mann, Roger Doss, Steve Hale, Dale Amos and Richard Bell.
These boys repair the school sign that was uselessly demolished on October 31, 1970.
